

Each charity gift card uses a toggle effect that shows or hides additional information (name, description, price, and “Add to Cart” button) when the card is clicked. This is achieved by adding or removing an `.active` CSS class using JavaScript. When the class is added, CSS transitions (`max-height` and `opacity`) smoothly reveal the hidden content, and when removed, the content collapses again. To avoid unwanted behavior, clicks on the “Add to Cart” button are excluded using event checks.

The shopping cart dynamically displays the selected charity gifts, their quantities, individual prices, and calculated totals. Items are stored in a JavaScript array, and the cart updates automatically whenever items are added, removed, or their quantity changes. The cart also calculates subtotal, discount (10% for 3 or more items), tax (20%), and final total. All values are recalculated in real time and rendered in the cart modal.

Main concepts/functions used: arrays (`push`, `find`, `reduce`), `updateCart()` function, DOM manipulation with `innerHTML`.

Confirm Donation

Instead of navigating between different pages, the website uses section-based navigation. When the user clicks “Checkout”, the gift grid and about section are hidden, and the checkout form is displayed. After submitting the form, the checkout section is hidden and a confirmation section is shown. This is handled by dynamically adding and removing Bootstrap’s `d-none` class. A “Back to Gifts” button allows the user to return to the main page without reloading the site.
